

The 2014 call for new members to join the Global Young Academy in 2015 is now open. Applications are sought from young, independent scholars who combine the highest level of research excellence with a demonstrated passion for delivering impact.

Research fields: The call is open to all scholars working in any research-based discipline, including the sciences, medicine, engineering, social sciences, the arts and humanities.

Excellence: Applicants must be able to demonstrate a high level of excellence in their discipline.

Impact: The Global Young Academy is committed to a broad range of programs around the world to support young scholars, promote science to a broad audience, engage in policy debate, and foster international and interdisciplinary collaboration. Applicants should provide evidence of interest or experience in one or more of these areas.

Age/career point: Applicants should be in the early years of their independent careers. The majority of the GYA's members are aged 30-40 and the typical period from completion of a PhD or similar degree is 5-10 years. Applicants falling significantly outside these ranges may be considered under exceptional circumstances.

Diversity: We encourage applications from all qualified candidates. Applications from women, researchers in the social sciences, arts and humanities, scholars working in government, industry, and non-governmental sectors, and from candidates in regions where the GYA has no current representation are particularly welcome.

Applications should be completed personally by the candidate and must be accompanied by a letter of support. Application forms and instructions can be downloaded from www.globalyoungacademy.net and should be emailed to applications@globalyoungacademy.net. The closing date for the receipt of applications is 11 pm UTC, Sunday 28 September 2014. No late entries will be accepted.

"The passion that young scientists bring to science builds networks of trusted personal relationships that can bridge disciplines for a lifetime."

Phil Gona, USA/ Zimbabwe

"The Global Young Academy promotes closer interactions among different cultures and disciplines. It is a place for creative discussion and innovative ideas that go beyond current limits."

Ghada Bassioni, Egypt

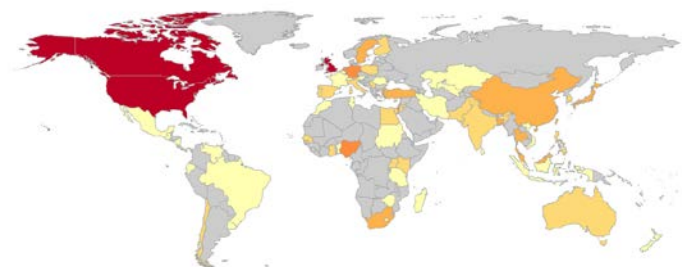

"Facing global as well as local problems together, we can achieve more than I ever thought was possible."

Mihaela Zigman, Germany

The Global Young Academy:

Founded in 2010, the Global Young Academy is an international organization of young researchers with members from six continents. Members are elected for five year terms. Each member is expected to actively contribute to one or more of the organization's programs, which include participation in policy development, promotion of national young academies, supporting science and education at the international level, and the young scientist ambassador program. For more information on the Global Young Academy or any of its programs, please visit www.globalyoungacademy.net.
